

VON BUELOW FIGURES IN NEW CRISIS

GERMAN AMBASSADOR AT ROME RESPONSIBLE FOR NEW SERIES OF CONFERENCES. PROPOSALS SUBMITTED

Latest Proposition of Germany Discussed at Cabinet Meeting.—King Will Not Attend Garibaldi Celebration.

Rome, via Paris, May 4.—In view of the international situation the king and his ministers cannot leave the capital to be present at the unveiling of the Garibaldi monument at Quarto San Elena. This was the text of a note issued after the meeting of the cabinet yesterday. Its publication produced a profound effect upon public opinion.

German Envoy Responsible. Abandonment of the plans for the participation of King Victor Emanuel and high government officials in the ceremonies attendant upon the unveiling of the monument has been the result of the call made by Prince von Buelow, the German ambassador, upon Foreign Minister Sonnino Sunday night.

The details of this conference are supposed to have been presented at the meeting of the cabinet, the call for which was not issued until yesterday morning. The ministers assembled last night at 11 o'clock, except Minister of Justice Orlando, who was absent from Rome, and he returned to the city in time to take part in some of the deliberations.

Immediately after the council closed Baron Sonnino, who called upon the king before the session opened, went to the consulate where the first secretary of the German embassy awaited him. These proposals were submitted to the cabinet ministers who hold another council today.

The press is unanimous in declaring the abandonment of the king's trip to Quarto San Elena to be a serious government's decision. A semi-official note couched in vague terms says: "Italy's attitude cannot undergo any change from the king's not going to Quarto San Elena."

An official of the foreign office is reported to have stated the government's decision was due entirely to the situation in Tripoli, where Italy might be forced to extreme measures to suppress a rising. German agents are fomenting rebellion.

Means War Postponement. Rome, via Paris, May 4.—The decision of King Victor Emanuel and his ministers not to take part in the ceremony of the unveiling of Garibaldi monument is being commented upon today as a step of great significance.

The presence of his majesty at the unveiling has come to be regarded as virtually tantamount to a declaration of war. Now the change in the king's plans is regarded as meaning participation of Italy in the European conflict again is postponed.

The hope is being entertained by the pacifists that the efforts of Italy to suppress a rising in Tripoli, where Italy might be forced to extreme measures to suppress a rising, German agents are fomenting rebellion.

ED FRENCH PEASANTS DOING FARMER'S WORK WITH CHILDREN'S AID.

General Headquarters, British Army, France, May 4.—The aged peasants of France, assisted by the women and children, have gone valiantly and diligently ahead with the farm work wherever opportunity offered, so that Spring tasks every inch of agricultural country, barring those strips of no-man's land between the trenches of the opposing armies, under cultivation. Practically all of the available land has been planted and along the front held by the British army are thousands of acres in wheat, some of it already more than a foot high. France is duplicating the intense farming idea of the Germans.

STRICT PROHIBITION OF WINES IN RUSSIA HAS RELAXED SOME.

Petrograd, May 4.—Strict prohibition of wines which followed the abolition of vodka in Petrograd, has been to be relaxed to some extent. For a time it was impossible for diners in hotels and restaurants to secure wines at any price. Today, on the contrary, it is quite easy to have such beverages served more or less cheaply, in pitchers, namely disguised as kvass, a common temperance drink. Householders easily procure supplies for home consumption by applying to the police captain of the district wherein they live.

CALLS FOR STATEMENTS FROM NATIONAL BANKS

Washington, May 4.—The comptroller of the currency today issued a call for the condition of all national banks at the close of business Saturday, May 1st.

SMYRNA ON VERGE OF SURRENDER IS NEWS FROM ATHENS

Allied Fleet's Bombardment of Forts in Gulf of Smyrna Reported to be Successful.

London, May 4.—In a dispatch from Athens received by the Exchange Telegraph company, the declaration is made that the fall of Smyrna entered into fresh negotiations with the allies for the surrender of the town.

Continuous Bombardment. Athens via London, May 4.—The bombardment of the Turkish forts on the Gulf of Smyrna has been resumed according to a message reaching here from Mitylene and the warships of the allies continue their shelling of the forts in the Dardanelles. The allies are reported to have effected a landing near the site of the ancient Ephesus, 35 miles southeast of Smyrna.

Advance Into Gallipoli. London, May 4.—British troops are now advancing into the interior of the Gallipoli peninsula, according to an official statement issued in London this evening.

BRITISH COAL SHIP IS TORPEDO VICTIM

Steamer Minterne Is Wrecked Off Scilly Islands.—Two Firemen Are Killed.

London, May 4.—The British steamer Minterne, from Cardiff for the River Plate with coal, was torpedoed off the Scilly Islands Monday. Two firemen were killed and the second engineer injured. The wounded men and remainder of the crew were landed at Penzance. The force of the explosion hurled the engineer through the aperture made in the ship's deck and saved his life. The crew took to their boats and finally were rescued by fishing vessels.

MINISTER'S SLANDER CASE IS ADJOURNED

Judge Maxwell on Motion of Trio of Defending Lawyers Adjourns Suit Against Rev. Leighton to May 19th.

Three attorneys, Henry Lochner, of Waukesha, Charles E. Pierce and George Sutherland of this city, appeared for Rev. C. E. Carton in the municipal court when the slander case was called by Judge Maxwell. The pastor is a defendant in a criminal action brought by Rev. William Leighton of Fulton and the case is attracting much attention in Southern Wisconsin as it involves alleged statements of derogatory nature, alleged to have been made by Rev. Carton about Rev. Leighton.

Attorney Charles Pierce offered objections to having Attorney Hal Martin, of Edgerton, appear as a state representative in the municipal court suit under the law that private counsel cannot appear in a state criminal case. Attorney Pierce characterized Martin's efforts in the prosecution of Rev. Carton as being "entirely too zealous." District Attorney Dunwiddie offered no objections to not having Martin appear in the case in Janesville. It was stated in court by the attorneys that civil action suits had been started by Rev. Leighton against Carton and a man named Wilson in the circuit court for Jefferson county and that Martin was appearing for the plaintiff in these cases.

After the question of who should be allowed to appear for the state had been threshed out it was learned there were four lawyers handling Carton's case. Attorney Pierce asked for an adjournment of the preliminary examination. The defense intends to take disposition testimony in the state of Illinois. The court asked the length of time and District Attorney Dunwiddie, with a touch of sarcasm, said, "to make it about a month."

It is expected the defense will offer their full testimony in the preliminary examination, aiming, it is understood, to prove the statement alleged in the warrant. Judge Maxwell adjourned the hearing until May 19th, at ten o'clock.

Wedded at Rockford: Charles C. Ossmann of Kaukauna and Miss Ruth M. Lone, daughter of Mrs. M. Lone, 216 East Milwaukee street, this city, were married at Rockford, last Wednesday. They will make their future home in Illinois.

PRIZE DAIRY HERD CURED OF RAVAGES OF MOUTH DISEASE

Animals Valued at $4,000,000 Recover from Scourge and Pass Rigorous Government Tests.

Chicago, May 4.—A prize herd of dairy cattle, valued at $4,000,000, which for the last six months has been under quarantine at the Hawthorne race tracks here, because of foot and mouth disease, has been pronounced cured and probably will be released from quarantine this week, it was announced today.

Dr. Jos. Hughes of Chicago, a veterinarian representing the owners of the cattle, said every trace of the disease had been stamped out, and the herd has successfully passed the test demanded by the government. It was declared that the test demonstrated the disease curable, that it is non-recurrent and cured animals are not carriers of the disease.

"We cured the herd," said Dr. Hughes, "by the use of simple hygiene. It was merely a problem of sanitation and feeding. We stamped out every trace of the disease and immunized the herd. Then it was Washington move."

The question before the federal government was whether the herd should be released at once. The government decided in the negative. While all cattle were well, the theory was that the animals, although themselves healthy, might still be carriers of the disease. It was decided to test them.

For this purpose the government brought in so-called "test animals." Fifty head of healthy cattle were brought in from Wisconsin, where the foot and mouth disease had been unknown. Fifty healthy hogs were brought in and had no contact with the healthy calves. These animals were all examined for two weeks before they were turned in with our quarantined cattle.

"All these test animals" were demonstrated to be healthy when they were brought in, and all of them are just as healthy today. Our cattle are not carriers of the disease. This government investigation is a laborate test. The government was not content merely to permit the quarantined and test animals to mingle in the same fields and stables. The government was determined to find out not merely whether the test animals would become infected through casual contact, but whether it was possible to infect the test animals. This was proved by the most elaborate scrapping from the horns of the quarantined cattle and applied the scrapings direct to the test animals. The same thing was done with the saliva of the quarantined animals. In every conceivable way the test was elaborated, and always the test animals remained free from disease."

SCANDINAVIAN NATIONS SEEK RUSSIAN TRADE WHILE CZAR IS WARRING

Amsterdam, May 4.—The Kiel correspondent of the Koenigsche Zeitung reports that the Scandinavian nations in all the Scandinavian countries for capturing the huge Russian trade which hitherto has been regarded as completely in German hands. Industrial and commercial men in Norway, Sweden and Denmark are endeavoring to learn the Russian language, while in Norway funds have been appropriated by the Stock Exchange authorities for a more extensive course of instruction in Russian in the Commercial High Schools.

DIRECT CABLE IS LAID BETWEEN ENGLAND AND RUSSIA FOR GOVERNMENTS.

Aberdeen, Scotland, May 4.—It has become known that a direct cable has been laid between England and Russia for the purpose of facilitating communication between the two governments. The cable is said to be longer than the Atlantic cable between England and America, and it is said to have been completely laid in eleven days.

DUTCH HAVE CENTRAL TRUST ON COMMERCE PREVENTING TROUBLE

Form National Organization to Overcome Difficulties Arising From War Around Little Holland.

The Hague, Holland, May 4.—A fine example of Dutch energy and determination, combined with readiness to meet new conditions, has been brought to the front in Holland since the outbreak of the war in the person of Cornelis J. K. Van Aalst, the organizer of the Netherlands Overseas Trust. This is not a trading concern but a national body of trustees to meet and overcome difficulties placed in the way of Dutch commerce by the declaration of blockades by the central European allies on the one side and the powers of the Triple Entente on the other.

It was found necessary in the first days of the war crisis to form a central institution to supervise Dutch commerce in order to prevent Holland falling unwittingly into difficulties which might involve her in the world conflict, and Mr. Van Aalst, who is president of one of the leading banks of the Netherlands, consented to undertake the task of organization.

The efforts of Great Britain and France to prevent goods which they had to be met. Dutch ships were to their foes through neutral channels had to be met. Dutch ships were among the first suspected of carrying on this trade, and they were, consequently almost always held up among their cargoes, was confiscated. The delay and loss of goods was very serious for the Dutch merchants.

This matter was taken in hand by Mr. Van Aalst and his colleagues of the "N. O. T.," as the new institution soon became known. Its members were drawn from the leading mercantile men, importers, shippers and bankers, and its was able, in a short time to win the respect and confidence of the foreign governments, which soon found they were dealing with a trustworthy body and permitted the much-needed raw materials and foodstuffs for Holland itself to be taken through their patrolling lines of war-vessels and brought to the Netherlands. The sole condition was that Dutch merchants were obliged to carry papers showing that the cargoes were consigned to the Netherlands Overseas Trust, which stood as guarantor for the good and good faith of the merchants who eventually were to receive them.

Success was complete, and Dutch commerce and industry, which otherwise might have been almost completely suspended, were kept going practically without interruption, so that after nine months of war, Holland is able to say that, taken in its broad lines, its economic life has not only been a very slight one, but that the frontiers of the country.

The operative methods of the Netherlands Overseas Trust are very simple. Goods would be imported by an exporter must first apply to the organization which inquires into the genuineness of the business, and besides demanding a bank guarantee requires proof that the goods are not being exported for the account of any person or firm belonging to a nation at war, or on the other side not being imported to Holland in order to be sent into any other country, but purely for consumption in Holland.

The amount of the bank guarantee, in case of the trader not keeping his word, is confiscated. A body of controllers looks closely into the eventual destination of the goods, and any breach of trust is quickly known.

The cost of the work of the Netherlands Overseas Trust, which has done so much for the country during the crisis, is only 1/4 of one percent of the value of the goods handled. The trust makes no profit, any surplus left from the percentage charged going to the national relief funds.

JAPAN TO DELIVER NEW NOTE TO CHINA

Ultimatum Urging China to Reconsider Latest Refusal Said to Be Under Consideration.

Tokyo, May 4.—Ministry of Justice Ozaki is quoted by the newspapers as having announced that the cabinet had decided to send an ultimatum to China urging her to reconsider the decision to make no further concessions to Japan.

It is explained in official circles that Japan has no desire to resort to force, but that China "must be made to realize that this country is determined upon the use of its arms for solidifying the peace of the Orient."

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION FOR PREVENTING STRIKES FAVORED IN AUSTRALIA.

Melbourne, Australia, May 4.—The theory that strikes, and other industrial disturbances can be obviated by compulsory arbitration, and the somewhat popular belief that Australia by reason of its employment of that means of meeting labor troubles is virtually free from them, are given a somewhat negative aspect by figures which have just been made available by the Commonwealth Statistician, C. H. Knibbs, covering the year 1914.

WILSON GOES OVER REPORT OF CONSUL IN GULFLIGHT CASE

President Considers Preliminary Report of Disaster Received From Representative at Plymouth.

Washington, May 4.—President Wilson had before him for consideration today preliminary reports from American Consul Stephens at Plymouth, telling of the torpedoing of the American steamer Gulflight in the English channel on Saturday, which resulted in the death of her captain from heart failure and the drowning of two of her crew. The reports were submitted to the president by Secretary Bryan, who has directed Consul Stephens and Ambassador Gerard, at Berlin, to make thorough inquiry into the willful sinking of the steamer.

President Wilson refrained from comment today on the wrecking of the American steamer Gulflight by a German torpedo while awaiting advice on all facts and circumstances. The president said he expected full reports from Consul Stephens as well as Ambassador Gerard.

The cabinet discussed the sinking of the Gulflight and afterwards members reiterated that the position of the United States would not be finally determined until further details were received.

First Officer's Statement. Consul General Skinner at London reported to the state department that the first officer of the Gulflight had stated that the submarine was sighted 25 minutes before the torpedo was fired.

The officers of the vessel forwarded telegrams to the state department giving practically the same information as received from other sources and adding that the company had no knowledge that her cargo of gasoline was for other than private consumption.

Comment in London. London, May 4.—The American embassy began today an investigation of the torpedoing of the American steamer Gulflight. A London afternoon newspaper comments only in the briefest manner on the Gulflight incident. The Westminster Gazette asked whether President Wilson will "make good his words of February," and hold the German government to strict accountability.

GULFLIGHT VICTIM HAS RELATIVE HERE

Mrs. J. W. Bleasdale, Whose Home Is West of City, Is Great-Aunt to Charles C. Short.

Mrs. J. W. Bleasdale of the town of Janesville is a great-aunt to Charles C. Short, the young wireless operator, one of the three victims in the torpedoing of the American oil steamer Gulflight by a German submarine, it became known today. Mrs. Bleasdale is now in Chicago visiting at the home of the young man's mother, Mrs. Lottie E. Short, who is grief-stricken over the drowning of her son.

According to Mr. Bleasdale the Short family lived in Janesville at one time and visited here on several occasions. A younger brother of the dead youth spent one summer recently at the Bleasdale farm. Mr. Short died six years ago at Postoria, O., and was a nephew of Mrs. Bleasdale.

Herman Heistrom of La Crosse, state president of the plumbers' association gave the principal address at the afternoon session. The morning roll call was taken showing 24 of the organization members to be present. The members had dinner at the Grand Hotel after the short morning session.

INTEREST ON COUNTY'S FUNDS AMOUNTS TO $532 DURING MONTH OF APRIL

Interest on the county's funds now on deposit in the various depository banks of the county amounted to $532.56 during the month of April according to the treasurer, F. F. Livermore. The balance on deposit on April 30 was $205,445.12 or about $17,000 less than at the beginning of the month. The interest received during same month last year was $404.74 on practically the same amount, $198,810. The banks pay interest at a rate of three per cent, one-half of a per cent higher than the rate a year ago.

HEAD OF ASIATIC FLEET TO RETIRE

Admiral Walter C. Cowles. Admiral Walter C. Cowles, the present commander of the Asiatic fleet of the U. S. navy, is to retire in July and Secretary Daniels is now considering the appointment of his successor. The appointment is made more desirable by the fact that while the fleet cruises the commander in chief has the rank of admiral at a salary of $12,000 a year.

ADMIT LOSS OF RUSSIANS IN GALICIA

LONDON IS FORCED TO CREDIT GERMAN REPORTS OF AUSTRIAN VICTORY IN CARPATHIANS.

TAKE 30,000 CAPTIVES

Vienna Dispatch Tells of Surrender of Entire Army of Invading Russians—Activity Reported on West Front.

London, May 4.—The reported Russian reverse in western Galicia took precedence over all other phases of the war today and even overshadowed the discussion of the forthcoming budget.

Striking an average between Austrian and German official accounts, London newspapers agree that the Russians must have been pushed back a considerable distance along this front, which runs a distance of 60 miles from the Carpathians over Bortfeld to a junction of the Dniester and Vistula rivers on the border of Russian Poland.

Petrograd Unconcerned. Petrograd expressed little concern over the situation, although admitted that the Austro-German forces are making strong attacks along the front on which they claim a great victory.

German official advices concerning operations on the western front confirm the French and British reports of attacks on the invaders at St. Julian, but nothing is said of assertions of the allies that 121 No. 60 is again the object of a general offensive.

Russian is again co-operating in the attack on Constantinople by renewing bombardment of the Bosphorus forts.

Capture 30,000 Russians. Vienna via London, May 4.—Thirty-thousand Russian soldiers, 22 cannon and 64 machine guns were captured in the battle of west Galicia, according to a statement given out in Vienna this afternoon.

Berlin Statement. Berlin via London, May 4.—The Germans yesterday took five positions in Flanders where fighting had been hot for many months past.

The same announcement sets forth that in the German invasion of Baltic provinces of Russia, the Germans captured more than 4,000 retreating Russians.

Other engagements in Russian Poland are described as resulting favorably to the Germans.

French Shift Attitude. Basel, Switzerland, via Paris, May 4.—The fortifications in upper Alsace were heavily bombarded by French artillery last Saturday. On Sunday the French continued firing in the direction of Germany. The result of this activity has not yet been made known.

NEW MILITARY ORDERS AGAINST PEDDLING EVIL.

Cairo, May 4.—Martial law has made it a dangerous matter for the peddlers of adulterated liquor to attempt business near the British encampment in Egypt. By proclamation, Lieutenant General Sir J. Maxwell has empowered special officers to enter and inspect any establishment suspected of selling bad liquor within a radius of five miles of any place where British troops are stationed. Any person found selling adulterated or inferior alcoholic drinks is liable to imprisonment, fine and loss of license.

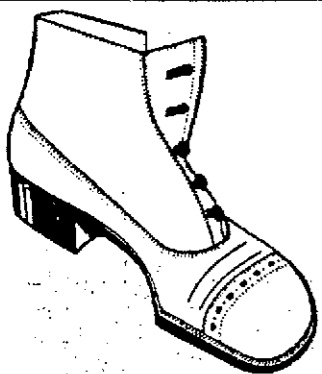

Egypt is in normal times filled with imitation liquors, wines and beers of such a poisonous nature that the drinkers go insane. Both the health and discipline of the troops was affected by this menace, now removed, in the early days of the war.

CUT DOWN ON USE OF LIQUOR IN BRITISH ARMY AT THE FRONT.

General Headquarters, British Army, France, May 4.—Contrary to popular belief the British soldier in the field is not receiving his ration or any other form of alcohol every day. Coincident with, but not necessarily associated with the temperance agitation in England, the rum rations are now served only twice a week. Warmer weather and the desire to cut down the use of stimulants is the explanation. So far as known there has been no protest from the troops. The two drinks a week amount to about half a gill each.

Self Starters

Newspaper advertising is self-starting and results are apparent almost immediately. It starts consumers to the stores where the goods are sold and enthralls the storekeepers who sell them. It puts the clerks in a good humor—for nothing is so stimulating as "good business." It sells the goods because it carries their message directly into the home at the time people are anxious to buy. For manufacturer or merchant no method of advertising is as productive as the printed word in the daily newspaper.

FAVOR GIRLS' CLUB AT CIVIC MEETING

Civic League Discusses Many Important Matters at Monthly Meeting Held Monday at City Hall.

The Civic League had its regular meeting at the city hall on the afternoon of May 3rd, Mrs. Taylor presiding. The reports of the various committees came first in order of business.

Memorial resolutions for Mrs. Osgood who was one of the charter members of the league, were placed on the records of the historian and secretary.

The Junior Civic League submitted its report to the effect that it would continue its work. Funds are to be supplied to it by the Civic League to enable it to finish the day operation. Miss Welch of the editorial committee, in investigating the local moving picture shows, had censured a play which was billed at the Myers theatre, and that it wished to express its appreciation of the good work of the Mr. Myers took in cancelling the play and of his expressed readiness to co-operate with the committee in repressing undesirable moving pictures. Miss Welch followed the report of the committee with an informal, interesting talk on censorship, discussing some of the difficulties in the way of censorship, stating the work of the editorial board, and suggesting possible constructive work for the public.

The bulk of the meeting was taken up with a discussion of the proposed Girls' Club for Janesville. The purpose spoke of the project of starting some such organization here, even if it be begun on a moderate scale, and Mrs. Sue Lowell-Hubbard spoke especially in favor of the project. The committee, because of the national establishment and the variety of activities it includes. Further discussion of the question was invited, but there was no opposed point of view expressed.

The meeting closed with a resolution to appoint two committees, one to act with the civic committee of the Commercial Club in a Safety First campaign, and another to organize a five from the civic council in organizing the work for some sort of girls' club for Janesville, so that a report might be ready for the first meeting in June.

PAPER IN PRZEMYSL GAVE FALSE HOPES

During Siege of Austrian City it Was Edited by Generals to Conceal Real Truth of Encounter.

Petrograd, May 4.—Among the relics of Przemyśl, there has been discovered a complete file of the Kriegs Nachrichten, a local paper issued daily during the entire time of the siege under the supervision of the Austrian commandant General Kistner. Up to November 14, the date when the Russian investment was resumed—this Przemyśl paper received its dispatches from Vienna by telegraph; after that it had to rely upon wireless messages, bolstered up by military comment of the Austrian authorities.

This paper shows how the spirits of the men were buoyed up by deceit and false hopes to the very day of the surrender. There is not in a single issue of the paper any mention made of the failing condition of the garrison or shortage of provisions, nor any intimation that surrender was imminent or even possible. The Austrian soldier was apparently serenely perusing optimistic reports of German and Austrian successes on the very day of the withdrawal and suddenly was hoisted over staff headquarters.

Early issues of the Kriegs Nachrichten reproduced telegrams from Cracow which tell of the "final collapse of the Russian advance in Galicia." An issue of a later date commented on the loss of three English cruisers, stating "it is not improbable now that the whole English fleet will soon be sunk in the open sea." A paper of October 2 stated that Russia had withdrawn her offer of autonomy to Poland and conveyed the remarkable intelligence that the Russian war minister had resigned and was to be replaced by General Linewich, who had died some time before. Papers of the same month announced that Przemyśl was once for all free and reported that the Russian feared revolution in Warsaw and Lodz.

From the 14th of November, depending solely upon wireless news, the dispatches became more meagre, but still more optimistic. The December papers of October 2, stated that the Russian invading troops, and reproduced personal letters from Russian soldiers obtained through the capture of a Russian mail train. According to these accounts, driven to desperation by lack of food and clothing and by the intense cold, many Russian soldiers were contemplating suicide. Further encouragement was derived from the letter of an Austrian deserter, who wrote that the general opinion was that Przemyśl had been "erected by the devil and could only be taken by the devil."

A continual literary diet of this sort persuaded the Austrian soldiers that all was going well for the Austrian forces in general and that Przemyśl itself never could be captured. In one of the last issues before the surrender there was an account of a charity lottery and concert conducted for the relief of the civilian population of Przemyśl. One hundred thousand tickets were distributed and 1,688 prizes were awarded which had been contributed by members of the garrison.

AUTOMOBILE IS STOLEN FROM ROCHELLE, ILLINOIS

Police here received information and warning that a new Buick five passenger automobile had been stolen from a garage at Rochelle, Illinois, and it is thought the thief is headed toward Wisconsin. The thief opened the garage between one and four o'clock Sunday morning, took a new car, helped himself to supplies and departed north. The garage number of the machine was 117280. There was no license number.

On Saturday night the police took into custody a one-legged boy, sixteen years of age, named Joseph Steiner, who had run away from his home in Chicago. After communicating with the Chicago police, Steiner was released after being given funds enough to carry him home.

Monday's Market.
Chicago, May 4.—A just-before-corn-planting hog run of 50,000, largest in four months, caused a break of 10@15c in prices yesterday.

Most of the big packing drives cost a few cents under $7.50, with best high-shipping at $7.70.

Chicago had the lion's share of the country's contribution, the ten outside markets receiving only 50,000 more than receipts here.

Combined swine total at eleven markets turned the 10,000,000 mark yesterday, or 1,908,000 more than year ago and second largest on record.

After a slow start yesterday's cattle trade finished strong, best yearlings selling at $8.75. Lambs closed 10@15c lower at $10.65 for fancy wool.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $7.50, against $7.62 Saturday, $7.42 a week ago, $8.92 a month ago and $8.41 a year and two years ago.

Yesterday's purchases:
Cattle—Receipts: 1,000; market strong; native 7.40@7.60; heavy butchers and ship- ping 7.45@7.55.

Light butchers: 7.50@7.65.
Light bacon: 15@16 lbs. 7.15@7.70.
Heavy packing: 200@240 lbs. 7.20@7.45.

Mixed packing: 200@250 lbs. 7.30@7.50.
Rough heavy packing: 7.00@7.15.
Poor to best pigs: 60@135 lbs. 5.25@7.00.

Sigs: 80 lbs. dockage per head: 6.50@7.00.
Cattle Range Is Narrow.

Native beef cattle sold within the narrowest range in 18 months, the lowest going below $7.50 and bulk at $7.65@8.25, with 600-lb. yearlings at $8.75, and $8.40 next highest price.

Steers and cow stuff generally steady and calves weak to 25c lower. Quotations:
Choice to fancy steers: $7.80@8.40.
Poor to good steers: 6.25@7.75.
Yearlings, fair to fancy: 7.15@8.75.
Fat cows and heifers: 6.00@8.75.
Countryside cows and heifers: 2.00@4.85.
Native bulls and stags: 4.90@7.10.
Poor to fancy veal calves: 5.75@6.75.

Dull Trade in Sheep.
Sheep and lamb trade yesterday started in dull and listless mood, was transacted until nearly noon, with late prices mostly 10c lower. Proportion of short stock largest of season.

Quotations for woolled: $9.95@10.65.
Lambs, poor to good culls: 8.00@9.00.
Yearlings, poor to best: 8.30@9.75.
Wethers, poor to fancy: 7.75@8.65.
Bewes, interior to choice: 6.50@8.25.
Bucks, common to choice: 5.50@6.25.
Shorn stock quotable: $1@1.75, few woolled lots.

CLEAN-UP WORK ENDS; BAD WEATHER HINDERS

Adverse Atmospheric Conditions Have Little Effect on Result of the Campaign.

Despite lowering skies and threatening weather conditions the result of Janesville's second day of clean-up and paint-up campaign are highly commendable according to members of the committee who were out supervising the work early this morning. The idea has taken a hold on the city and everywhere the result of the campaign can be easily noticed.

Similar to yesterday, when one hundred and fifty wagon loads of debris were hauled to the three city dumps, almost that many more found their way there today. The number this morning was somewhat below that of yesterday morning, the opinion being that the adverse weather was the cause.

The subscription list conducted by the Commercial Club in the interests of the campaign is still open and Secretary McDowell continues to collect money for the work. Not quite enough funds have been received today and the hope has been expressed by members of the clean-up committee that philanthropically inclined citizens will come forward with their share of the funds at once so that no deficit will be experienced when the bills for the two days work come in. Quite an amount was expended in the work, for teams, help and printing and other incidentals.

The campaign closes tonight.

New Use for Mercury.

A scientific investigator of Europe has discovered a method of destroying fungus disease and household pests by the use of mercury. In enclosed spaces the mercury is employed in the form of vapor. In other cases it is injected in metallic form directly into the circulating fluids of the plant. The growth of the plant is not only not disturbed, but is in most cases actually assisted.

CHOOSE TEACHERS FOR COMING YEAR

Few Changes Are Made by Board of Education at Meeting Last Night—To Receive Bids for Supplies.

The board of education met last night at the high school building. The matter of deciding on public school instructors for the year, 1915-16, was of most importance before the board members. With the exception of a few changes, the list submitted by Supt. Rhell will remain the same as during the present year.

The changes are as follows: Miss Verna Bannison of the kindergarten, Jefferson school, will be replaced by Miss Wilma Jones; Miss Elsie Field of the kindergarten, Webster school, will be succeeded by Miss Vivian Davidson; Miss Lalla Soverrill will assume Miss Wilma Jones' position at the kindergarten, Washington school. The only other change is that of Miss Genevieve McKinley, who takes Miss Carrie Nelson's place as fifth grade teacher at the Adams school.

The committee on supplies were instructed to make an on what is to be needed next year.

INVITED TO BE EXHIBITOR AT CHICAGO ART EXHIBIT.

Miss Ella Smith of this city has been invited by the director of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts to be an exhibitor at the exhibition of American artists to be given at the Academy from August the second to 28th inclusive. Miss Smith will accept the invitation, and plans to hand in several of her art panels.

"Ignorance of the Law."
Take an innocent little statute. One lawyer (maybe a country counselor) says it is dead. Another lawyer says it is alive. The poor little statute does not know whether it is coming or going, whether it is alive or dead, afoot or horseback. And yet "no man can plead ignorance of the law." A man may go to jail if he does not know the law—unless he is a lawyer. Oh, you Exact Science!—Kansas City Times.

His Usual Behavior.
A little boy with big, innocent blue eyes and sunny smile had been having an unusually good romp all morning, but when dinner was announced he so quietly and sedately followed out after his uncle, who was visiting them, that the uncle, noticing, said to him: "Ray, I believe you are a pretty good boy." Ray, looking up solemnly, replied: "I'm just like this all the time."

NOT ALL GLORIFICATION.

Talk as they may this suit of Janesville against Roosevelt is bringing out a lot about practical politics that the general public never even suspected. It is a good thing once in a while to air even dirty political linen and especially to puncture the balloon of self-confidence that some men feel it upon themselves to hoist to the public winds in self-exaltation of being the "annointed." The Nations in an editorial in the last issue sums up the situation by saying:

"What the least effect may be of the disclosures made at Syracuse, it would be rash to predict. If, according to the saying, the Almighty does not know how twelve men on a jury will decide in an ordinary case, the uncertainties are vastly multiplied in a political trial like the present. One would say that it had already been proved that Col. Roosevelt did not come into court with clean hands. He had allowed in himself what he had denounced in others in another. Last year he was charging, up and down the state, that Whitman, if elected governor, would be the tool of the republican boss, who would in turn be working bipartisan arrangements with Tammany. But Governor Whitman, if he had tried, could not have been so subservient to Barnes as Roosevelt was to Platt. Nor could he so unblushingly have made an important appointment merely to 'please Grady'—the notorious Grady of Tammany Hall. Thus even the most obtuse jurymen must now see that the Colonel, when he was crying out last year about the sum of all political villainies, knew what he was talking about, because he, when governor, practiced with gusto all the arts that he afterwards came to call black. But all these matters relating to the actual suit for libel are of small consequence compared with the larger aspects of the trial. The jury will bring in whatever verdict it thinks right. Meanwhile, a public verdict will have been pronounced.

This will be based upon such written evidence as has been produced already. What was before merely suspected, or rumored, or reported at second hand, we now have verified by Mr. Roosevelt's own letters. He did not furnish them, though doubtless he has copies of them all. These letters have been preserved by Platt and Hughes. Their damaging effect is twofold. First, is their revelation of how Roosevelt felt about Hughes. Of recent years, the Colonel has found it convenient to speak well of Governor Hughes. But at the time—in the thick of the fight—what was his attitude? Active dislike and tacit opposition. In 1908 Roosevelt took precisely the same view of Hughes that the governor's envenomed opponents—Barnes, Parsons, and others—did. Why, Hughes had "wantonly behaved badly to the very man who did most in securing his election." What did this mean? Simply that Hughes had broken with the party bosses; that, in his desire to see justice done in this state, he had gone direct to the people. In other words, his course had been precisely that which Roosevelt in 1912 lauded himself to the skies for pursuing. But this was 1907 and 1908! Moreover, it was another man! And the lot of that man was contempt and sullen antagonism from the great boss-hater, Theodore Roosevelt. Not a word of appreciation had he then for the high personal qualities which Governor Hughes had displayed for the way in which he had bound himself to the best citizens of the state only sneer at the man and acquiescence in his second nomination merely as a political necessity. The Colonel may do a lot of explaining about this, but he cannot explain away his own letter. It remains to do infinite harm to his reputation.

And then those letters of his to Platt! Unearthed in the boss' archives, they are about the ugliest thing that Roosevelt has ever had to face. Their showing is peculiarly damaging, since they make it plain not only that Roosevelt worked easily with this most offensive boss of his day, and submitted nearly everything for his approval, but that he flattered him and fawned upon him and toadied to him and professed to take great delight in social intercourse with him. Of course, he had a theory about all this. He will doubtless try again to make it fit the facts, though the mass of facts now piled up is obviously crushing the theory. It is that he was throughout working for "righteousness," but that, as a practical man, he had to use whatever tools lay to his hand. He was always sure that he had a spoon long enough to sup with the devil, and he would never hesitate to do business with one thoroughly evil, provided that, in the end, the triumph of righteousness shone forth like the sun. But in asking you to believe this, Mr. Roosevelt is really asking too much. He is trying to project backwards to 1899 the glomous of 1912. In the latter year, his head was surrounded—without any violent resistance on his part—with a kind of anti-halo halo. And he would have us think that he was entitled to wear it in 1899. But a simpler and more natural theory better fits the facts, a theory have now been amply established by the theory does not seek to reconcile flat contradictions. Nor does it ask people to gulp down impossibilities. It takes Theodore Roosevelt in 1899, not as the apostle of righteousness and social justice that he was said to have become in 1912, but as a vigorous young man, not too fastidious, intensely ambitious, consumed with desire for high office, who had deliberately made up his mind that the road to success for him lay with the party organization and the party boss. Verily, verily, he had his reward. But he ought to add to his many other sterling qualities clear sight, to see himself as others see him, and moral frankness, to depict his career in the past as it really was, and not as he wishes it had been. This is a protest, a hard arraignment, but coming as it does from Roosevelt's own state press it is even more bitter. The Nation has analyzed the whole situation carefully with the above result.

In all this talk about good roads, building up the main thoroughfares of the city, the arteries of trade as it were, the desire for high office, between the party residents and the city dwellers and business houses, why not do something with Center avenue? It is certainly in a disgraceful condition and the residents would be glad to have almost anything done to improve that road within reason.

Speaking about spring clean up. Is it not about time for the council to take a new sidewalk through the upper end of the Court House Park? The old one that has so long been in use is really a menace to pedestrians and many prefer to walk on the grass at the side rather than trust themselves to its rough surface.

The anti-administration state press are predicting all sorts of dire disaster when the legislature comes to take up what are known as the administration measures for consideration. It is expected that the ultra progressive from the ultra progressive, but whether thinking men will fall in line with them remains to be seen. The taxpayers of the state want these bills passed and the sooner the legislators find it out the quicker results can be obtained.

When that state agricultural bill passed by the senate we may lay plans for a business administration of state agricultural interests, the state fair among them. The sooner this exhibit is placed on a business basis and placed in the hands of capable managers the better for the state as a whole.

Of course everybody is nice and spick and span by this time? If not do not let the fact that the two official days are over deter you from doing your duty as a citizen.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

The man who begins laughing in the middle of his joke seldom knows anything funny.

A man can't do justice to himself as an entertainer when his wife is around.

It is said of Mrs. Lemuel Wigg that she is as good to old people as she is to babies.

When Sam Hookle has money the people read the newspapers very closely for the purpose of ascertaining where the robbery occurred and the name of the victim.

One of the poorest imitations is that given by the woman who is trying to simulate indifference to the fact that she wasn't invited to the party.

There is no particular reason for it, but the effeminate man is always called "Lizzie."

Considering the way they have been ground down, the people of this country get along pretty well.

If you wish to write an expression of contempt from a man, refer casually to the woman who jilted him.

Eph Wiley says the reason a suit of clothes never lasts him through the season is that his wife picks it to pieces in her search for ravelings.

When a man is unusually courteous to a woman, that is an indication she is not his wife.

SPUR OF THE MOMENT.....
The Modern Farmer.
This farmer dialect we see
In print is mostly trash.
A cultivated man is he
He never says "B' gosh!"

He never chews a piece of hay:
He is no "rubber neck."
The English that he speaks is pure.
He never says "By Heck!"
He travels in his motor car;
He spends his moments laughing at
The rubes who live in towns.
ABE MARTIN.
Speaking of the fellow who invented the suspender button that goes on with a clasp was certainly a friend of the suffragette's husband.
Amy Tubbs' gal said she wouldn't marry a man without a title, so he went and got one. He now has the title H. D., meaning boss doctor.
When a fellow has got tonsillitis the best thing to cure it is a nice soft sleeve wrapped around his neck with a woman's arm in it.
It might not be quite so stylish, but I would just as soon be kicked to death by a 8 1/2 mile as to be blown into the eternal here by a $10,000 40-horsepower automobile.
The fellow who gets excited may splash around quite a lot, but the quiet fellow knocks off the persimmons.
There are a whole lot of famous diplomats in this world who can't frame up a good excuse for getting home late which will convince their wives.

How to Be Beautiful.
(By Beatrice Bonehead.)
Be born with a pretty face and keep it at your life.
Do not grow old. This is one of the first principles of remaining young and beautiful.

If your hair is coming out, keep it in a paper sack and have a switch made of it. Then you can always say your hair is your own.

Enamel your face with white Alabastine and then put the rouge on top of that.

The best way to tighten your corset laces is to put the corset on, tie the strings to the leg of the bed and then jump out of the window. In that way you can get one of those wasp-like waists which are hard to see but beautiful to look at.
If you have one of those noses which curve upward you can make it behave by tying a nation to it. In time it will begin to grow downward instead of upward.

The Old-Fashioned Girls.
They don't tog out like a jivey girl.
And wear them bangles and beads galore.
And every mornin' night and noon
They wasn't lit up like a corner saloon.

They didn't ride round in limousines
Or big seven-passenger gas machines.
And when they wanted to put on They'd slide in a livery rig once in awhile.

But still I am somehow bound to say.
They were like the wimmen nowadays
On one little stunt they would never balk.
There wasn't a time when they couldn't talk.

I guess from the days of Adam and Eve.
At least so we are led to believe.
There never was a woman, old or young,
Who didn't have the full use of her tongue.

Paste This in Your Hat.
When trouble kind of gets your goat
And splits your joy in half,
Jes' grab your teeth and quirk your face
And laff—and laff—and laff.

Look What Cain Did.
Aristocratic relations have nothing to do with a man's real character. Cain belonged to one of the first families in the Holy Land, but when he got mad he was such a bad man that he killed half the young men in Asia.

SNAP SHOTS

Probably the most pitiable figure is that of the elderly man who is wholly dependent upon his relatives.

The average fan's idea of a good ball game is one in which the umpire fires four or five of the visiting players and then ejects them from the field.

The rule in this country is that when a white lady marries a colored gentleman her family is not socially prominent.

Buck Kilby, whose own matrimonial venture was wrecked, says the reason more women than men apply for divorce is that a man can stand more punishment than a woman.

Every time a street car line is constructed the basis for another interminable municipal row is laid.

When a strange hound shows up in your neighborhood—that is an indication that a family of Missourians has moved into it.

The people of our town have seen so many stage villains in top boots that they think everybody in New York wears them.

When a man has a few moments of leisure he sits down and lights his pipe. When a woman has a few moments of leisure she sits down and writes a letter to a friend.

Nearly every man who has had experience in employing him is disposed to sneer at the honest American workman.

A woman puts up a pretty good battle against her husband's relatives, but her greatest fight is the one she wages against adipose tissue.

Danger of Optimism.
An optimist may go too far in imagining every weed is a flower and allowing the plain but necessary vegetables to be choked out of the garden.

ELEPHANT ROUTS TROOPS

Germans and English in Africa Retreat Before Enraged Beast.

London.—An angry elephant put a stop to a sharp engagement between English and Germans in West Africa, according to a letter received from an English officer.

"This country is full of elephants," he writes. "Coming down to the railway terminus today we met a couple of them on the road, but they just snuffed their ears and walked off. The other day we were having a hot fight with the Germans, when suddenly an angry elephant appeared between us and darted first one way and then another. Before you could catch both sides had retreated. It was bad enough to face a Maxim, but nobody wants to take on an elephant that is annoyed."

RUSSIANS ACT LIKE VANDALS
Wrath Particularly Inflamed Against Russians Who Refuse to Serve as Spies.

Vienna.—Count Meran, the Austrian governor of Bukovina, states that in most places occupied by the Russians they appear to have conducted themselves like vandals. Their wrath was especially inflamed against the Russians who refused to do service as spies for them, in retaliation for which the Russians instituted pogroms against them. As a result of this persecution large numbers fled to Roumania.

Bangi Goes Ambition.

Another pathetic little feature of everyday life is the way a man at twenty-one will start out with absolute confidence that he is destined to be a leader of men and at forty will regard himself as a reasonable success if he can keep from being a goat.—Ohio State Journal.

RUSSIANS ACT LIKE VANDALS
Wrath Particularly Inflamed Against Russians Who Refuse to Serve as Spies.

Vienna.—Count Meran, the Austrian governor of Bukovina, states that in most places occupied by the Russians they appear to have conducted themselves like vandals. Their wrath was especially inflamed against the Russians who refused to do service as spies for them, in retaliation for which the Russians instituted pogroms against them. As a result of this persecution large numbers fled to Roumania.

Age Ninety, Trains for Sprint.
Yonkers, N. Y.—David Anderson celebrated his ninetieth birthday by beginning training for the 100-yard dash for old men at the summer games of the Caledonian club. Anderson won the race in 1910 and 1912.

COUNTY BASEBALL TEAMS IN Y. M. C. A. LEAGUE ARE ORGANIZING FOR SEASON

Considerable attention was attracted by a pretty young lady who traded one of the fashionable streets wearing a veil or which was woven of fine material, "Votes for Women." "Old fogies" who had firmly refused not to be swayed from their determined stand to refuse to women the right to vote, followed the young lady with twinkling eyes and said to themselves that after all there ought to be no objection to women veiled maids, among whom was one who evidently was enrolled in the ranks of the "suffragettes" and who kept shouting out "Cat! Cat!" "The votes for women" will promises to set a new fashion.

JANEVILLE FAMILY HAS RELATIVE WHO IS HELD PRISONER

Captain in Famous 48th Highlanders, Captured in Recent Ypres Fight
Is Nephew of Mrs. Tallman.

Mrs. Edgar D. Tallman, 440 North Jackson street, has received word that her nephew, Captain Robert Cory, of the 48th Highlanders, the famous Canadian regiment, was captured by the Germans during the recent Ypres fighting near the Canadian border. Captain Cory's brother, Col. G. N. Cory, of the British army, received by his father, C. D. Cory, of Toronto, Canada, news of the young man's capture in the two words, "Bob prisoner." Captain Cory, who is 28 years of age, was recently married while on a fortnight's leave of absence from duty, and while he was engaged with his father in the insurance business before volunteering for active service.

The Canadian regiment bore the brunt of the German attack in the battle which raged April 22 and 23, according to complete accounts of the engagement, which have been received by cablegram from Sir Max Aitken, the Canadian record officer, recently received at Ottawa, gives an account of the fighting in detail and tells of the part the Canadian regiment played. With reference to the 48th Highlanders it says:

"At 4 a. m. Friday, the 23d, a fresh emission of gas was made both upon the Second Brigade, which held the line running northeast, and upon the Third Brigade, which had continued to hold the line up to the pivotal point. The Forty-eighth Highlanders were almost entirely cut off and became isolated. The battalion retired from the trench, recovered themselves and recaptured it."

"It was clear that several German divisions were attempting to drive back the Third Brigade and in any event to use their enormous numerical superiority to sweep around and overwhelm our left flank."

"The last attempt partially succeeded. The German troops swung past the unsupported left of the brigade and, slipping in between the wood and the main line, they struck the Canadian line with the long-drawn sword of the moment, the reality, or isolation from the brigade base."

"Friday afternoon the left of the Canadian line was strengthened by important reinforcements of British troops amounting to seven battalions. From this time forward the Canadians also continued to receive assistance from the left from a series of French counter-attacks pushed in a northeasterly direction from the canal bank."

"The fire of the artillery of the enemy continued to grow in intensity. It became evident that the Canadian salient could no longer be maintained against the overwhelmingly superior force of number by which it was assailed. Slowly, stubbornly and resting every yard the defenders gave ground until the salient gradually receded from the point where it originally aligned with the French and fell back upon the main line."

"Soon it became evident that even St. Julien, exposed from right and left, was no longer tenable in the face of the overwhelming numerical superiority. The Third Brigade was, therefore, ordered to retreat farther south, selling every yard of ground dearly. But it was found impossible without hazardous far larger force to disengage the detachment of the Royal Highlanders of Montreal, Thirteenth Battalion, and of the Royal Montreal Regiment, Thirteenth Battalion. The brigade was ordered not a moment too soon to move back. It left these units with heavy hearts."

"The German line rolled over the deserted village, but for several hours after the enemy had become master of the village, the sullen and persistent rifle fire which survived showed that they were not yet masters of the Canadian rear guard. If they died, they died worthily of Canada."

SATURN IS BRIGHT EVENING MAY STAR

Early Morning Is Time to See Brilliant Group of Planets in East Horizon.

Saturn remains the only conspicuous planet in the evening sky, during the month of May. It is well over to the west when it begins to show in the twilight and sets behind the northwestern horizon in the late evening. Those who wish to observe this planet, therefore, should improve the opportunities of the present month. Mercury was in superior conjunction May 1 and at greatest elongation east May 31. This brings it up as the evening star, and in the latter part of the month it will be very favorably situated for observation except as the bright moon and a hazy sky may obscure it. In the evening of May 30, Mercury will be more readily found by its proximity to Saturn. It will be about half a degree west and two and one-half degrees north of the latter. Mercury will continue its greater motion and on the following evening may be seen to the east of Saturn.

A brilliant group of planets is seen now rising over the east point of the horizon in the early morning. They appear in order, Jupiter, Mars, Venus the beginning of the month, Venus the morning star proper and the brightest. On the morning of May 14, Venus, in its greater motion eastward passes close by Mars, less than one degree to the south of the latter; and by the close of the month the three planets will be more widely separated.

The times of sunrise and sunset for the month are as follows: Sunrise—May 1 at 4:53; May 11 at 4:40; May 21 at 4:29; May 31 at 4:22. Sunset—May 1 at 8:57; May 11 at 7:45; May 21 at 7:34; May 31 at 7:28. The times of the moon's phases are: Last quarter, May 5 at 11:23 p. m.; new moon, May 13 at 8:31 a. m.; first quarter, May 21 at 10:50 p. m.; full moon, May 28 at 3:33 p. m.

The principal fixed stars visible during the month are:

Antares, Castor and Pollux, Procyon and Regulus; to the east, Spica, Arcturus and Vega.

The Sherman Kelley Stock Company, which played here at city hall a week ago Saturday night and advertised to be here every Saturday night all summer, evidently did not think Clinton a good prospect for the venture as they failed to appear Saturday night.

Married, at Birmingham, Alabama, April 26th, Miss Georgia Miner, eldest daughter of our townspeople, Mr. and Mrs. George Miner, to Walter P. Blocher of Baltimore, Maryland. Mr. and Mrs. Blocher were classmates at University of Wis. He is a civil engineer for B. & O. railroad company. Their wedding trip will include Washington, New York and Rochester, New Jersey, the home of the parents of the groom.

Mrs. Blocher resided in Clinton with her parents during her girlhood; is a graduate of the Clinton high school and the state university, and has a large circle of admiring friends here who wish her health, happiness and prosperity.

The terrific wind of last Thursday blew over the silo on W. J. McKinnon's farm northeast of town.

May 1st witnessed probably the biggest moving day Clinton ever had on one day. Nine families changed their residence.

O. E. Florin, of Janesville, was here Thursday.

Miss Mildred Murry spent Saturday and Sunday here with her parents, returning to Burlington Monday morning.

Johnstown, May 3.—Miss Rosa Lerch of Webster, Wisconsin, and friend, Miss Michaelson, spent last week at the Lerch home.

Dr. C. Dike and wife entertained relatives from Elkhorn last Wednesday.

Helen and Mary Taylor were weekend guests at the parental home.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Moseley's guest last week was their father, Mr. Lester, of Janesville.

Wm. Hall lost one of his best horses Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Craig attended the Odd Fellows' meeting and banquet at Whitewater Tuesday evening. They report a splendid time.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hanthorn spent Saturday evening with Janesville relatives.

Mrs. W. Lerch accompanied Rosa, Lerch and Miss Michaelson to Janesville Friday and spent the day with friends.

Memorial Day comes on Sunday, therefore the next day, Monday, is a legal holiday.

Hallie Peterson was a recent guest from East Troy with the home folks.

Albert Pinnow is improving from his recent illness, an attack of heart trouble.

Mrs. Dike remains very low with slight hope of a recovery.

Miss Marion Peterson entertained Miss Laura Mackold and friend, of Eagle, on Sunday.

Try "GETS-IT," It's Magic for Corns!

New, Simple, Common-Sense Way. You will never know how really easy it is to get rid of a corn, until you have tried "GETS-IT." Nothing like it has ever been produced. It takes less time to apply it than it does to read this. It will amaze you.

Kabyl Corn-pain in Every Nerve! Use "GETS-IT," It "Gets" Every Corn Surely, Quickly!

you, especially if you have tried everything else for corns. Two drops applied in a few seconds—that's all. The corn shrivels, then comes right off painlessly, without fussing or trouble. If you have ever made a far bigger out of your toe with bandages, used thick corn-pressing cotton-wool, corn-pulling salves, corn-tossing plasters—well, you'll appreciate the difference when you use "GETS-IT." Your corns go away with a "Griping" and gouging with knives, razors, files and scissors, and the danger of blood-poison are done away with. Try "GETS-IT" tonight for any corn, callus, wart or bunion. Never fails.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere. One bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Guard Your Friendships.

A friend whom you have been gaining during your whole life, you ought not to be displeased with in a moment. A stone is many years becoming a ruby. Take care that you do not destroy it in an instant against another stone.—Saadi.

COMBING WON'T RID HAIR OF DANDRUFF

The Easiest and Best Way Is to Dissolve It.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It falls out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and every one notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

MILWAUKEE SUFFERER TRIED JUST ONE DOSE

Ben Behling Gave Up Hope Before He Found Remedy—Happy Now.

Ben F. Behling of 959 Louis avenue, Milwaukee, was a sufferer from maladies of the stomach and digestive tract for a long time. He gave up hope.

At last he discovered Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. He took a dose just to try it. The results were remarkable. He wrote:

"I was in such bad condition that I had given up hope of ever getting well again. I sent to you for one dose of your remedy and took it the same day you sent it. It has worked wonderfully. I took five more bottles, one each week. I am now a new man again. I thank you a thousand times for the good you did me."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your drug-gist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY

By
GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark," "Truxton King," Etc.

Copyright, 1915, by George Barr M'CUTCHEON.

"Many of them, sir. Always with proper credentials, believe me. Ach, what a spendthrift he is! And his poor wife! Ach, Gott, how she must suffer! Nearly all of the grand paintings, the tapestries that came from France and Italy hundreds of years ago, the wonderful old bedsteads and tables that were here when the castle was new—all gone! And for mere songs, mein herr—the cheapest of songs!—!"

"Please don't weep now, Herr Schmick," I made haste to exclaim, seeing lachrymose symptoms in his bleary old eyes. Then I became firm once more. This knavery must cease or I'd know the reason why. "The next man who comes here to cart away so much as a single piece is to be kicked out. Do you understand? These things belong to me. Kick him into the river. By Jove, I'd like to wring that rascal's neck! A count: Umph!"

"Ach, he is of the noblest family in all the land!" sighed old Gretel. "His grandfather was a fine man." I contrived to subdue my rage and disappointment and somewhat loudly returned to the topic from which we were drifting.

"As for those beastly padlocks, I shall have them filed off tomorrow. I give you warning: Conrad, if the keys are not forthcoming before noon tomorrow I'll file 'em off, so help me!"

"They are yours to destroy, mein herr, God knows," said he dismally. "It is a pity to destroy fine old padlocks!"

"Well, you wait and see," said I grimly. His face beamed once more. "Ach, I forgot to say that there are padlocks on the other side of the door, just as on this side. It will be of no use to destroy these. The door still could not be forced. Mein Gott, how thankful I am to have remembered it in time!"

"Confound you, Schmick! I believe you actually want to keep me out of that part of the castle," I exploded.

The four of them protested manfully, even Gretel. "I have a plan, sir," said Britton. "Why not place a tall ladder in the courtyard and crawl in through one of the windows?"

"Splendid! That's what we'll do!" I cried enthusiastically. "And now let's go to bed. We will breakfast at 8, Mrs. Schmick. The early bird catches the worm, you know."

"Will you see the American ladies and gentlemen who are coming tomorrow to pick out the?"

"Yes, I'll see them," said I, compressing my lips. "Don't let me oversleep, Britton."

"I shan't," said he. But I did. "Get up, sir, if you please," Britton repeated the third time. "The party of Americans is here now, sir, rummaging about the place."

"Where is Poopendyke?" I cried, leaping out of bed.

"Mr. Poopendyke is in despair, sir. He has tried to explain that nothing is for sale, but the gentlemen say they are onto his game. They go right on yanking things about and putting their own prices on them and reserving them."

"I'll—I'll put a stop to all this," I grated, seeing red for an instant.

"And the ladies, sir! There are three of them, all from New York city, and they keep on saying they are completely overjoyed, sir. Your great sideboard in the dining room is to go to Mrs. Riley-Werkheimer, and the ball sent that the first baron used to throw his armor on when he came in from."

"Grent snakes!" I roared. "They haven't moved it, have they? It will fall to pieces!"

"No, sir. They are piling sconces and candelabra and andirons on it, regardless of what Mr. Poopendyke says. You'd better hurry, sir. Here is your collar and necktie!"

"I don't want 'em. Where the dickens are my trousers?"

His face fell. "Being pressed, sir. God forgive me!"

"Get out another pair, confound you, Britton! What are we coming too?" He began rummaging in the huge clothespress, all the while regaling me with news from the regions below.

"Mr. Poopendyke has gone up to his room, sir, with his typewriter. The young lady insisted on having it. She squealed with joy at seeing an antique typewriter, and he had to run away with it, 'pon my soul he did, sir."

I couldn't help laughing. "And your golf clubs, Mr. Smart. The young gentleman of the party is perfectly carried away with them. He says they're the real thing, the genuine sixteenth century article. They are a bit rusted, you'll remember. I left him out in the courtyard trying your brassie and midiron, sir, endeavoring to loft potatoes over the south wall. I succeeded in hiding the balls, sir. Just as I started upstairs I heard one of the new window panes in the banquet hall smash, sir, so I take it he must have sliced his drive a bit."

"Who let these people in?" I demanded in smothered tones from the depths of a sweater I was getting into in order to gain time by omitting a collar.

"They came in with the plumbers, sir, at half past 8. Old man Schmick tried to keep him out, but they said they didn't understand German and walked right by, leaving their donkeys in the roadway outside."

"Couldn't Rudolph and Max stop them?" I cried as my head emerged.

"They were still in bed, sir. I think they're at breakfast now."

"Good Lord!" I groaned, looking at my watch. "Nine thirty! What sort of a rest cure am I conducting here?"

We hurried downstairs so fast that I lost one of my bedroom slippers. It went clattering on ahead of us, making a shameful racket on the bare stones, but Britton caught it up in time to save it from the clutches of the curio vandals.

Two gentlemen wearing fedoras were standing in the middle of the great hall discussing the merits of a dingy old spinnet that had been carried out of the music room by two lusty porters from the hotel.

As I came up I heard one of the strangers say to the other:

"Well, if you don't want it I'll take it. My wife says it can be made into a writing desk with a little!"

"I beg your pardon, gentlemen," said I, confronting them. "Will you be good enough to explain this intrusion?"

They stared at me as if I were a servant asking for higher wages. The speaker, a man with a bristly mustache and a red peckie, drew himself up haughtily. "Who are you?" he demanded, fixing me with a glare.

CHAPTER III.

The Real Owner.

I KNEW at once that he was the kind of an American I have come to hate with a hate that knows no moderation—the kind that makes one ashamed of the national melting pot. I glared back at him.

"I happen to be the owner of this place, and you'll oblige me by clearing out."

"What's that? Here, here, none of that sort of talk, my friend! We're here to look over your stuff, and we mean business, but you won't get anywhere by talking like that!"

"There is nothing for sale here," I said shortly. "And you've got a lot of nerve to come bolting into a private house!"

"Say," said the second man, advancing with a most insulting scowl, "we'll understand each other right off the reel, my friend. All you've got to do is to answer us when we ask for prices. Now, bear that in mind, and don't try any of your high and mighty tactics on us."

"Just remember that you're a junk dealer and we'll get along splendidly," said the other in a tone meant to crush me. "What do you ask for this thing?" tapping the dusty spinnet with his walking stick.

It suddenly occurred to me that the situation was humorous.

"You will have to produce your references, gentlemen, before I can discuss anything with you," I said, after swallowing very hard. (It must have been my pride.)

They stared. "Good Lord!" gasped the bristly one, blinking his eyes. "Don't you know who this gentleman is? You appear to be an American. You must know Mr. Riley-Werkheimer of New York."

"I regret to say that I have never heard of Mr. Riley-Werkheimer. I did not know that Mrs. Riley-Werkheimer's husband was living. And may I ask who you are?"

"Oh, I am also a nobody," said he, with a wink at his purple jawed companion. "I am only poor old Rocks-worth, the president of the—"

"Oh, don't say anything more, Mr. Rocksworth," I cried. "I have heard of you. This fine old spinnet? Well, it has been reduced in price. Ten thousand dollars, Mr. Rocksworth."

"Ten thousand nothing! I'll take it at $75. And now let's talk about this here ball sent. My wife thinks it's a fake. What is its history, and what sort of guarantee can you?"

"A fake!" I cried in dismay. "My dear Mr. Rocksworth, that is the very ball sent that Pontius Pilate sat in when waiting for an audience with the first of the great Teutonic barons. The treaty between the Romans and the Teutons was signed on that table over there, the one you have so judiciously selected. I perceive. Of course you know that this was the Saxon seat of government. Charlemagne lived here with his court."

They tried not to look impressed, but rather overdid it.

"That's the sort of story you fellows always put up, you skindulks from Boston. I'll bet my head you are from Boston," said Mr. Rocksworth shrewdly.

"I couldn't afford to have you lose your head, Mr. Rocksworth, so I shan't take you on," said I merrily.

"Don't get fresh now," said he stiffly. Mr. Riley-Werkheimer walked past me to take a closer look at the seat, almost treading on my toes rather than give an inch to me.

"How can you prove that it's the genuine article?" he demanded curtly. "You have my word for it, sir," I said quietly.

"Fish tush!" said he. Mr. Rocksworth turned in the direction of the banquet hall.

"Carrie," he shouted, "come here a minute, will you?"

"Don't about like that, Orson," came back from the porcelain closet. "You almost made me drop this thing."

"Well, drop it and come on. This is important."

I wiped the moisture from my brow and respectfully put my clenched fists into my pockets.

A minute later three females appeared on the scene, all of them dusting their hands and curing their noses in disgust.

"I never saw such a dirty place," said the foremost, a large lady who couldn't by any circumstance of fate have been anybody's wife but Rocks-worth's. "It's filthy! What do you want?"

"I've bought this thing here for seventy-five. You said I couldn't get it for a nickel under a thousand. And, say, this man tells me the ball seat here belonged to Pontius Pilate in—"

"Pardon me," I interrupted, "I merely said that he sat in it. I am not trying to deceive you, sir."

"And the treaty was signed on this table," said Mr. Riley-Werkheimer. He addressed himself to a plump young lady with a distorted bust and a twenty-two inch waist. "Maude, what do you know about the Roman-Teutonic treaty? We'll catch you now, my friend," he went on, turning to me. "My daughter is up in ancient history. She's an authority."

Miss Maude appeared to be racking her brain. I undertook to assist her. "I mean the second treaty, after the fall of Nuremberg," I explained.

"Oh," she said, instantly relieved. "Was it really signed here, right here in this hall? Oh, father, we must have that table!"

"You are sure there was a treaty, Maude?" demanded her parent accusingly.

"Certainly," she cried. "The Teutons ceded Alsace-Lorraine to—"

"Pardon me once more," I cried, and this time I plead guilty to a blush. "You are thinking of the other treaty—the one at Metz, Miss Riley-Werkheimer. This, as you will recall, antedates that one by—oh, several years."

"Thank you," she said, quite condescendingly. "I was confused for a moment. Of course, father, I can't say that it was signed here on this table as the young man says. I only know that there was a treaty. I do wish you'd come and see the fire screen I've found!"

"Let's get this out of our system first," said her father. "If you can show me statistics and the proper proof that this is the genuine table, young man, I'll—"

"Pray rest easy, sir," I said. "We can take it up later on. The facts are—"

"And this Pontius Pilate sent," interrupted Rocksworth, biting off the end of a fresh cigar—"what about it? Got a match?"

"Get the gentleman a match, Britton," I said, thereby giving my valet an opportunity to do his exploding in the pantry. "I can only affirm, sir, that it is common history that Pontius Pilate spent a portion of his exile here in the sixth century. It is reasonable to assume that he sat in this seat, being an old man unused to difficult stairways. He—"

"Buy it, Orson," said his wife, with authority. "We'll take a chance on it. If it isn't the right thing we can sell it to the secondhand dealers. What's the price?"

HORSEMEN REJOICE OVER NEW TRACKS

Famous Turf Races Will Be Revived Again This Year Say Reports From New York.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, May 4.—Horsemen are rejoicing over the reports that the Suburban Handicap and also the Flatbush will be revived this year.

The suburban, which in other days ushered in the Gravesend meeting, annually was a real classic ranking with the greatest races in the world. It probably will be made one of the features of the Empire session in July, while the Flatbush may be run off at Belmont Park.

Both should produce contests reminiscent of the days of the Kinney Mack-Ethelbert controversies of a decade or more ago, when such a race mare as Imp, revered of all race goers of her day, was unable to do better than third in a true run race.

Saratoga, while mourning the loss of the famous Futurity, is seeking to put on a similar event that will serve as a real tryout for the big affair.

There is no event quite like the big 2 year old classic and probably never could be, because the Futurity has its traditions. Whether Saratoga will make the attempt to furnish an attraction along the same lines will depend much upon the prospect of the game between now and the Saratoga date.

Every meeting will be superior to anything held last year, in the class of horses that will face the starter. The Whitney, Belmont and other big racing interests are preparing some of the best bred horses in the world today for the post and if blood will tell—something not disputed—it may be that the public will witness new records and battles between stallions with all the old time rivalry and show that added so much in other years to the sport of kings and millionaires.

WOLGAST CLAIMING ONE-EIGHTH PART OF WILLARD MONEY

Now comes Ad Wolgast to affirm that he has a right to share in the earnings of Jess Willard, heavyweight champion of the world. From his Cadillac fastness, Wolgast sends word of a contract drawn up between Tom Jones, Willard and himself, when Ad advanced $1,500 to release the cowboy from the clutches of Charlie Cutler, who had a claim on Willard's services.

Wolgast, after visiting an attorney, said he could collect one-eighth of Willard's earnings, so long as the latter fights. According to Wolgast, Jones was to pay him back $750, but the money is still coming. The ex-champion says he has already received money from Willard's bouts with Gunboat Smith and Charlie Miller.

COAST TENNIS STARS PREPARE FOR SEASON.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

San Francisco, May 4.—California's three tennis cracks, Willie Johnston, Maurice McLoughlin and Lynn Murray are now hard at work preparing for the 1915 season. Johnston is the latest of the trio to begin loosening up. He does not intend to start East, however, for participation in tournaments there until all of the big events on the Coast have been decided. Johnston will compete in the Exposition championship, which means that he will not get East before July at the earliest.

The splendid showing of the New York Yankees is a great thing for the American league, for it means that the club over which Donovan presides will be an attraction this year if it can keep well up in the race. Donovan has done wonders with the team he has. He has every man hustling like a Trojan.

THE GOOD JUDGE IS POPULAR WITH THE R. R. BROTHERHOOD

JUDGE, YOU HAVE THE CONFIDENCE AND SUPPORT OF EVERY MAN ON THIS TRANSCONTINENTAL SYSTEM FROM BOILER WIPER UP TO PRESIDENT.

MY CREED IS: "DO UNTO OTHERS AS YOU WOULD HAVE THEM DO UNTO YOU" AND IT PAYS TOO.

CUT TWO WAYS. WE ARE SURE FOR THE GOOD JUDGE AND THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED, RIGHT CUT IS SHORT SHRED!!

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less to the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

(Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.)

Charlie Dooin has been unable to play for several days because of a boil on his leg. It would be worth a fortune if some one could discover a way for ball players to have their boils during the season and not after the championship season starts.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

Tom Jones stands supreme in Flistina's annals as a handler of champions. To date he has taken three raw products and in the end these selfsame three wore belts emblematic of the highest possible ring honors. Billy Papke was the first. Then came Ad Wolgast, and today Tom holds the managerial reins to Jess Willard. It will be seen that Tom played no favorites, since Papke was a middleweight, Wolgast a lightweight and Willard a heavyweight—the heaviest in the history of the game, too.

Erwin Bergdoll, millionaire Philadelphia brewer and auto-racing enthusiast, does not believe in doing things by halves. He is thus building no less than three special cars for the next Indianapolis 500-mile race, hoping that one of them will win, even if the others are junked. Bergdoll proposes to drive one of the cars himself. He is, by the way, no novice at the game, having won fame for himself by piloting a Benz to victory in the 1911 Fairmount Park Race at Philadelphia as an amateur. Since then he has not competed much.

Judged from his showing to date with the bat, Hans Wagner has regained his batting eye and will again shine among the great hitters of his league during the present season. What a wonderful player Wagner has been, and still is, for that matter. He is playing second base for the Pirates in just as impressive a manner as he ever did any other position he has covered, and he is hitting the ball as good as any man on his team.

A glance at the line-up of the Minneapolis club of the American Association this spring might lead one to believe that he was looking at a Washington roster. Cantillon's lead-off man is Massey, the outfielder who made such a good impression with the Nationals at Charlottesville. Wally Smith is playing third, and Morley Jennings, another former National, is at short. Dave Altizer is in the outfield, and last, but not least, Earl Cashion is the team's first baseman. Cashion is hitting like a fiend for the Millers. The other day he made four hits out of five times up and one of them was a home run and another a triple. Incidentally, the Minneapolis papers are praising the improvement Cashion is showing in fielding his position. When Manager Griffith turned Cashion over to Cantillon it was with the understanding that he play him at first so as to develop him for that position. Cashion has been playing the position all spring and has made a big hit with the fans where the team has played. His hitting has been sensational, having an average to date of more than .500. Griffith has a string on most of the players he turned over to Cantillon and it is not unlikely that the time will come when Cashion will come back to Washington as a full-fledged first baseman.

Latest reports about A. F. Wilding, the famous Davis cup player, who is a member of the British aviation corps in the war, are that he is "very fit, but too heavy for a five set match."

RAIN STOPS CUBS FROM GIVING PIRATES WORSE WALLOPING THAN 5 TO 1

Chicago, May 4.—After a weird exhibition the Chicago Cubs trounced the Pittsburgh Pirates 5 to 1, in five innings, yesterday, when rain halted further playing. Starting under threatening skies the Cubs progressed in the scrap until the score stood 5 to 1 in the fourth, when rain started to dampen the ardor of the teams. With gathering skies in the fourth Pittsburgh tried the stalling game to end the contest before the fifth. Two Cubs had bunched out and Pierce, pitching for the Cubs, started to strike out. Cooper, hurrying for the Pirates, attempted to put the ball out of his reach, and then tried to "bean" Pierce. Pierce lost his temper, throwing the bat at Cooper, and delayed the game. After considerable horse play to prevent a legal game the Cubs finished the inning. In the second Saler scored a home run. Singles by Good and Saler, two passes, a double steal and a wild pitch gave the Cubs their four runs in the third.

Kid Purrier of Fond du Lac and Zip Schuster of this city, old time rivals, will clash in the third bout of the card.

BOSTON'S VICTORIES HELP OVER ATHLETICS MAKE THEM FAVORITES

Dopesters who are figuring out the American league championship race of 1915, and who favor Boston, are pointing to the great record that that team made against the Athletics last season. Mack's team had a winning average of .651, but was beaten out on its series with the Red Sox by Carrigan's men, 12 to 9 games. Boston was the only club that could put it over on the champions. Twelve was the smallest number of victories by the Mackmen over other clubs. Detroit holding them to the dozen count. From that the number of Philadelphia victories ran to seventeen over Chicago and nineteen over Cleveland, out of a possible twenty-two in either case.

Beer Best Brain Food, Says Prof. Chandler

And It's Never Adulterated, So Columbia Man Tells Master Brewers' Convention

Prof. Charles Frederick Chandler is the ranking Professor of Chemistry at Columbia University, New York City, the largest University in the world.

"Beer," said Prof. Chandler, "is a beverage prepared from barley, water, hops and yeast. Beer is food. American beer contains 6 per cent. solid food, only 3 to 4 per cent. alcohol and also lecithin, which is real brain food. Beer and bread are both made from cereals; bread with water and is solid; beer with more water and is liquid. A yeast converts both into palatable and readily digested food. Both contain alcohol. Beer is not intoxicating in ordinary quantities and beer is one of the foods that is free from bacteria. It is appetizing and aids digestion. I have had some experience with beer and have been a consumer. I have enjoyed most perfect health and I guess I am a pretty good specimen of the food value of beer.

"I don't believe there is any beer made in the United States that is what you call adulterated. It may be misbranded, but not adulterated. If the prohibitionists drive beer from the household they will deprive a large part of the population of a wholesome article of food. There you have reasons enough why beer has become our national beverage."

Baseball writers and others are having a good many jokes at the expense of Lee Meadows, pitcher of the St. Louis Nationals, the only known player in organized baseball who wears spectacles while playing. POLITE TO VICTIMS

German Sea Raiders Are Courteous and Generous.

British Skippers Tell of Kind Treatment Received From Commanders of Kaiser's Submarines—Are Given Wine and Cigars.

London.—The commanders of the German sea raiders are treating the victims of their raids with excessive courtesy and even generosity. I have just obtained from Capt. Leonard Malley of the Ellerman line, Andalusian some further details of his meeting with the famous Lieut. Otto von Weddigen, who, by sinking four British warships, has made the most successful record of all the undersea chiefs. He now commands the U-29, which attacked the Andalusian off the Scilly Islands.

In leaving his vessel Captain Malley painfully injured his side. Von Weddigen ordered him taken into the cabin, where his hurts were bandaged. The cigars and port wine were set out and over these the British skipper told the German as politely as possible what he thought of the Von Tirpitz policy concerning merchantmen.

"It is our duty," replied Lieutenant von Weddigen simply. "At the same time we do not want to take civilian lives. It is the ships we want to kill, not the men."

Up to this time Captain Malley did not know the name of his captor. He now thought he recognized the German commander's face from pictures he had seen in illustrated weeklies and asked him: "Aren't you the man who sunk four British cruisers last autumn?"

"Yes," responded Von Weddigen, without emotion. "I was commanding the U-9 then."

They had a conversation of about an hour. The lieutenant said that his boat, one of the latest type, was fitted with two machine guns instead of one, as in the case of older submarines. Traveling awash he could catch anything up to 17 knots.

Speaking in general of the war, he expressed deep regret that it should have proved inevitable.

"It is an awful business," he remarked with feeling. "It is my personal hope that it may soon be over. Britain and Germany ought not to be at enmity; we ought to be allies. Just think of it—Britain as the world's greatest sea power and the great German army together; we could command this world."

In the meantime the crew of the Andalusian had been taken from the boats. These the submarine took in tow and the British crew were massed on deck. The men, to whom the German officers handed cigars, were packed tightly together and had to stand up. Two of the submarine crew stood by with revolvers in their hands.

When they parted one of the officers waved his hand and said: "Be good enough to give our respects to Mr. Churchill."—Winston Churchill, British first lord of the admiralty.

Captain Williams of the Indian City, whose craft was torpedoed off the Scillys, was invited on board the submarine. The captain of the raider brought out a box of cigars and a bottle of wine, and conversed with the British sailor while the ship's boats with their crews were being towed to the islands.

Suddenly two British patrol boats were sighted. Captain Williams was politely ordered by the German commander to get into one of his own boats. The submarine then made off. The patrol boats chased her and fired, but the submarine was too fast for them and easily got away.

The Andalusian was also torpedoed by Von Weddigen 25 miles off the Gasquets. The captain asked the German to spare his ship, but the commander replied that as war was war he was unable to accede to the request, adding, "I am very, very sorry to have to sink your ship."

The crew was allowed ten minutes to launch their lifeboats. The Germans gave the British a box of cigars and wanted to know if they had enough to eat.

THERE ARE "JAGS" IN FOOD

Moral is: Watch Your Diet, Declares Harvard Medical School Expert.

Boston.—"Many popular artificial foods contain more alcohol than sherry wine and will cause intoxication," said Dr. Franklin W. White, who spoke on "Food in Health and Disease," at the Harvard Medical school.

Comparing the relative value of foods, White said that a glass of milk was equal to twenty glasses of soup or broth, and that a small slice of bread and butter equaled a large plate of beans or a dozen oysters. He emphasized the nutritive value of olive oil, a spoonful of which, he said, equaled in value a glass of milk.

Wherever the foolish question, "What do your men really do for a living?" is asked of Mr. Oberholfer, conductor of the orchestra, he replies with the story of the country boy who, after attaining a position in which his tenor voice brought him an income of $10,000 a year returned to his village home and gave a free concert in the town hall to which he invited all his boyhood acquaintances. After the concert one old chap said to him: "You are a good singer Bob, and I liked your show; but tell me, what do you really do to earn your living?"

GERMAN ARMIES FARMING INVADERS LANDS OF FRENCH

More Than 75,000 Acres Under Cultivation in District Around Sedan.

DOUBLE YIELDS PRODUCED

Efficiency of Methods Shown—Dairy
Operated by Troops—If Peace Comes, Civilians Will Get the Crops.

By F. H. GAILOR.
In the New York World.
Bergen-Op-Zoom.—In answer to a question I had asked one of the officers at Sedan about the German government taking all the supplies of food into its own hands, I was told that the Germans had no fear of running short of food, and that they thought the idea of the allies being able to starve them out was absurd.
"For instance," one of the officers said to me, "to show you how we Germans look ahead, we have below here more than 75,000 acres of land under cultivation in wheat and potatoes. We hope that the civilians will gather this crop and that the war will be over by the time of the harvest, but if it is not the army will reap the benefit."

Two or three days later I was taken over the "army farm" by the little fat major who has organized and directed the work. He was the bandmaster rather than the military type of German and had been the manager of a large estate in Pomerania. Talk of the trenches left him cold, but at a mention of the farm or its affairs he became another person. His small black eyes twinkled, his fifty years seemed to become twenty-five, and he went into ecstasies over the improvements Germany, and especially Pomer-ania, had introduced in harvesting machinery, fertilization or potatoes.
As we rode along in a military automobile from Sedan to Rethel, he kept telling me of the primitive agricultural methods he had found when the German army first entered that country.

Planter Is Rewarded.
"They don't know how it is to use what they have got," he kept saying as he pointed to a manure pile in front of a cottage door or a clump of trees standing in the middle of a field.
"They lose one-half of the fertilizing power by not having pits, and they do not know forestry at all. You should see Pomerania."

In the buttonhole of his tunic he wore the black ribbon with two white strips which represents the Iron Cross, and I asked him if he had ever been in the trenches. "No," was the answer, "but I planted these fields and so increased the prospects for food. It was taken as a mark of distinguished service to the fatherland and my general recommended me for the honor. The order is for distinguished service of any kind. Germany rewards its workers as well as its fighters, and the fighters depend on the workers for their living, as they must have food. I know farming, so I am used for that. Germany never wastes its opportunities."

When we had passed Rethel and gone south about six miles, we turned east along the southern boundary of the 75,000-acre farm that the soldiers of the Third German army are working. We passed many fields where the soldiers and civilians were working side by side, some where a soldier was driving an army horse and often an army cart, and a civilian was walking alongside, spreading the manure with a pitchfork. I asked some of these civilians if the Germans were forcing them to work. They all said no, but that unless they used the army horses for their carts and plowing they had no means of preparing the ground for planting.

I was told that the soldiers were all doing this during their five days' rest from the trenches. "They like it because it gives them something to think about besides the war and the fighting."

Competition in Cultivation.
Many of the men of the army had been farmers in North Germany, and one of the officers said: "They can fight, but they would rather farm."

I was shown pieces of land that had been cultivated in competition between different regiments. One battalion of a regiment is resting while the other is in the trenches, so that about half are working all the time. These fields had the regimental flags flying and their owners had fled from that part of the country
so that no civilians had had anything to do with preparing the land.

At the time when I was taken over the work plowing was still going on,
but all the ground was to be planted by the middle of March. The crops were potatoes and wheat. The first potatoes will be ready in June and the first wheat later on in the autumn. I asked the major if he expected to be in that country when the crops came in. "Oh, no," he said, "we don't expect to have an army here then. We hope that the war will be over and the civilians can have the full benefit of our work."

The land that the army is cultivating is some of the best land in northern France, well watered and well drained. The average yield in wheat an acre has been in former years about twenty-five bushels an acre, but the Germans told me that with their "system" and care they expect to increase this to about thirty-five bushels an acre, counting in the bits of land that are now being cultivated for the first time. They have about 50,000 acres under cultivation in wheat, so the harvest should give them about 1,750,000 bushels. Of course, the civilians will have a share of this, but even so there will be an immense profit for German efficiency and forethought.

At Attigny we took horses and rode out across the fields to a hill on which the soldiers were using one of the French threshing machines for grain that had been found in the fields when the army arrived. It was one of the old type of machines with a horsetreadmill to supply the power. Soldiers were doing the work and the first thing that I noticed about these soldiers was that they had on blue uniforms instead of the usual gray.
I asked why, and one of the officers said that it was a sentiment with the soldiers. They were proud of the impression the gray-green uniform had made on the world and would not use it for anything but war. These blue uniforms were the undress of the army used at home when not in active service.

No Civilians in Sight.
The threshing machine was working steadily, but there were no civilians in sight. I asked if the army was going to have all this grain, and was told that the soldiers got a third and the other two-thirds was to be turned in to the mayor to be used for the civilian population. This same rule is carried out all over that part of the country where wheat has been found in the fields.

From that threshing machine we went to another, which the major proudly told me was "made in Germany." It was placed in a nearby village under a shed, and a crowd of peasants had gathered around to watch it work. Some of them told me it was the first that had been seen in that part of the country. It was run by a little steam donkey engine, and would be the usual sight in any wheat country in the United States, but its capacity was five times that of the horse machine we had examined first, and its output something like ten times as great.

There was a baling machine attached to make up bundles of straw for the men and horses in the trenches.

From there we went along through the village to an inclosure where many farming machines had been collected from the fields. For the most part they were plows and harrows that had been brought in from miles around, and the names of the makers were Belgian, French and many of them American. The officers told me that they had been left in the fields
by the French soldiers at ascertained distances apart so that the artillery or aeroplanes making them out from above as they were lying in the fields and seeing soldiers near them could get the range for the guns. The Germans said that they soon "got wise" to this system, and thereafter the soldiers shunned the plows as if they were signs of the plague.

Many Motor Plows.
On the way back to Sedan they showed us some of the 15 motor plows which the Third army has in operation, and told me that more were being sent on from Germany every day.
They still did not have sufficient machines for the number of men that they were able to spare for the work.
I was told that the army farther west had 35 of these plows at work during the month of February, so I judged that extensive agricultural work was going on there as well. The plows are of German manufacture. They were using six plow points on the machines that I examined, and I was told that the engines were of 25 horse power.
They could prepare about ten acres of land a day with one of these plows, and all the soldiers who were used for this work had had experience before they joined the army, so that they were proficient and able to work rapidly.

When we reached Sedan it was afternoon milking time, and I went over the army dairies with the major who was in charge. I could not help wishing that this farming and this dairying, so perfectly organized and carried out by the soldiers, was the real object for which the German army was trained and disciplined. The dairy at Sedan was the former stable of a French regiment of cuirassiers, but the Germans had put in concrete floors and partitions where none had existed in the old days.

The large shedlike structure which had been the regimental riding school had been turned into the army butcher shop, and 250 animals were butchered there every day for the use of the men in and around Sedan. The butchering for the men in the trenches goes on nearer the lines, where the transportation is easier and the meat fresher when it arrives to be prepared for the men under fire.

Run Model Dairy.
In the dairy there were some three hundred cows—Swiss, Holsteins and even Jerseys—that had been taken from the country around Sedan. The major showed me these cows that were giving milk for the sick and wounded in Sedan and then took me to a peasant's stable and showed me his cattle. Even the major's enthusiasm could not exaggerate the superiority of the army cows and their surroundings as far as cleanliness and general hygiene were concerned.

"Some of our cows were just like these two months ago," he said, "and you see what our methods have done here. We have doubled the quantity of milk that the native cows give and we will also double the amount of wheat that their land will raise, if our army has to stay here long enough for us to gather in the crops."

From conversations I had with the officers, I gathered that this work in northern France is only an example of what is going on all over the territory occupied by the German army.
The army in Flanders is cultivating on an even more extensive scale than that in France. In Belgium the soldiers quartered in the small towns are overseeing the work of the peasants and themselves cultivating the land that has been deserted. I do not think I became pro-German on that trip over the army farm, but I was convinced that with the policy of starvation alone, the allies would take a long time to win this war.

That these men actively engaged in the fighting and so near the center of operations, are taking such thought for the future, argues that those left at home in Germany with nothing to do but think of supporting their armies are being even more careful to make every acre count in the final decision.

SONS CAN'T DINE TOGETHER

One Is Officer, Other a Private, and Etiquette Forbids Intimate Intercourse.

London.—Wholesale enlistment is responsible for some Gilbertian situations. For instance, a woman writes to a newspaper to know what is the proper thing to do under the following curious circumstances:

She has two sons in Lord Kitchener's army—one an officer, the other a private. On one occasion she wanted them to take her to a theater, but military etiquette does not permit of officers and privates being seen together in public. Again, the brothers cannot meet their mother's guests at the dinner table for the same reason.
Socially, when in uniform, they rank alike, but nowadays uniform is obligatory on all occasions. Hence the tangle.

Now is the time to get rid of any old clothes you do not wish to store or have no use for.

TWIN MARINES FOOL NAVY OFFICIALS

Leslie and Hallie Woodcock.

Two marines stationed at League Island near Philadelphia are causing no end of trouble. After eight months in the service their company officers and their fellow marines cannot tell them apart. They are Leslie and Hallie Woodcock, twenty years old, and hail from South Carolina.

The Surprising Part.
"I was surprised to learn that Bona-head had lost his mind." "What was there surprising about it?" "Why, that his friends found it out. That's what surprises me."

What kind of boat?

Appreciation.
The curtain descended slowly. Hamlet had died a beautiful death and was being carried out shoulder high and by his loyal friends. The audience sat with bated breath, impressed with the solemnity of the occasion.
Not a whisper was heard and the silence was so intense you could hear the beating of your own heart. All at once a shrill whisper was heard distinctly. "My, ain't that just swell!"

Because It Had No Hard Usage.
A couple were discussing a certain cheap store, he in defense and she the negative. "Say, look at this pocketbook. I bought it for a dime almost a year ago. Not worn a bit," he said.
"Well, that's because you don't take it out of your pocket enough," she said, and the argument was closed.—

POPULARITY

Never before has there been such a demand for the Buick car. It is unquestionably the one great hit of the automobile world. Highly equipped and lowly priced—it has made the Buick factory work over time—and although we bought more cars this year than ever before we will not be able to supply the demand for 1915.
